Bel Air

Tapered Slate

Ponderosa

What's the difference?

Concrete tile is made of all-natural materials.

Simplicity is beautiful. Bel Air is a smooth, flat tile that elegantly modernizes your residential or commercial project. Its clean design pairs well with a variety of building styles and exterior finishes, such as siding, wood, metal, stonework and pavers.

Emulated to look like costly slate roofing materials but at a fraction of the cost, Tapered Slate is a luxurious flat concrete tile featuring a smooth surface with chipped and chamfered edges that add beauty and dimension to any rooftop.

Ponderosa is a flat tile with prominent raking throughout the entire surface creating that perfect "wood shake" look. Warm and welcoming with an earthy feel, a Ponderosa concrete tile roof looks great on a brick home or a structure with a stone exterior.

Bel Air suits Contemporary, Floridian, Traditional and Transitional architecture.

Tapered Slate pairs well with a variety of architectural styles and buildings, such as: Cape Cod, Chateau, Colonial, Craftsman, and Tudor.

Ponderosa perfectly complements a range of building themes, from Cape Cod, Colonial, Cottage and Craftsman-style Bungalow to Log Home and Prairie structures.
